

Essay on Pollution in 100 words

Pollution is the introduction of harmful substances or contaminants into the environment. There are different types of pollution, such as air, water, soil and noise pollution. Air pollution takes place when harmful gases and particles are released into the air from vehicles and factories. It can cause breathing problems like asthma and make people sick. Water pollution occurs when chemicals or waste contaminate water bodies. The contaminated water is unsafe for humans and aquatic life. Harmful chemicals or waste contaminate the soil causing soil pollution. It can make soil less fertile. Noise pollution, caused by loud sounds from traffic and industries, can lead to stress and hearing problems. Planting trees and using public transport can help reduce pollution.
